ISA EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

SYRACUSE UNIVERSITY

Postdoctoral Fellow
Public Policy and Administration

The Department of Public Administration at the Maxwell School of Syracuse University is seeking a Postdoctoral Fellow for 2006-07 with a specialty in public policy and administration in the developing world. Advanced ABDs also will be considered. In addition to conducting his or her research, the Fellow would teach one course per semester on this subject to students in the professional Master of Public Administration (MPA) program, the Executive Master of Public Administration program (EMPA) and the Master of Arts in International Relations program. He or she also would assist with the activities of the Development and Social Transformation Forum, a group housed in the Maxwell School's Moynihan Institute of Global Affairs that organizes lectures, seminars, and publications concerning third world development. Recent PhDs or advanced ABDs from political science, public policy, public administration, anthropology, geography or sociology programs are encouraged to apply.

Applications consisting of a letter of interest, c.v., writing sample, and two letters of recommendation may be sent to:

Jeffrey D. Straussman, Associate Dean and Chair, Department of Public Administration, Maxwell School of Syracuse University, 215 Eggers Hall, Syracuse, NY 13244-1020.
